PARIS DISPATCH SAYS SULTAN HAS AGREED TO WAIT

Vienna Report Indicates That Fighting May Start Without Declaration.

Servia is Aroused Through Fear of Austria.

EUROPEAN OUTLOOK IS BAD

Paris, Oct. 6.—It is announced that Sultan Abdul Hamid has agreed to postpone declaring war with Bulgaria, pending a conference of the powers. It is believed a means will be found to avoid war. The announcement followed a conference of foreign ministers; Pishon, of France; Iswolsky, of Russia; Premier Clemenceau and British Ambassador Bertie, Bulgarian agents.

SERVIA AROUSED.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 6.—A royal ukase was issued calling all reservists, numbering 120,000 arms. The Servians fear Austria plans to force Servia and Rumania into a federation under Bulgarian control. Both countries are preparing forcibly to resist.

OUTLOOK THREATENING.

Vienna, Oct. 6.—The European outlook is threatening. Skirmishing between Bulgarians and Turks is reported along the frontier. The czar notified Francis Joseph he won't observe the Berlin treaty since the other powers are violating it, and demands his share in the rearmament of the Balkans, including a passage through the Dardanelles and Euxine. It is believed the czar promised to support the Sultan, Bulgaria is rushing troops to the frontier. Armies are closing in and it is believed fighting will begin without declaration.

France as Mediator.

Paris, Oct. 6.—France has essayed the role of mediator with the object of preventing war between Turkey and Bulgaria, and as a result of Foreign Minister Pichon's series of conferences today with representatives of the powers, including M. Iswolsky, Russian foreign minister, Nacim Pascha, Turkish ambassador to France, the Austro-Hungarian, British, American and Italian ambassadors and of the active exchanges which have been going on between the various cabinets, it was announced last night that France, Great Britain, Russia and possibly Italy were prepared to act in unison to preserve peace and call a conference of the signatories of the Berlin treaty to deal diplomatically with the situation that has arisen between Turkey and Bulgaria, and to harmonize the conflicting interests so that fresh complications may be avoided.

Already certain tentative propositions as a basis for such a conference have been forwarded to Constantinople and if the Porte's assent can be secured it is regarded as certain that peace may be maintained.

The danger of war is believed to lie in the precipitate action of Constantinople. Forced by the "Young Turks" party, which may fear a blow at its prestige if it acquiesces in the loss of Bulgaria, and by the military party, which wants to restore the old order of things, it is feared that Turkey, although ill-prepared, both from a financial and military standpoint, may proclaim war. Should this be the case, the efforts of the powers will then be directed to limiting the war to Bulgaria and Turkey.

According to information received here Bulgaria would welcome war.

Fiscal Court Re-elects Officers and Votes to Gravel Roads and All Residents Agree to Share in Cost

Report of Condition of Funds Made by County Treasurer and Address Delivered by County Judge Lightfoot.

The regular October term of fiscal court, which is the most important of the year, was held this morning at the court house with all the magistrates in attendance. Besides receiving the semi-annual reports of the treasurer, the keeper of the county sanitarium and county commissioners were elected. William Thompson was re-elected keeper of the sanitarium and his compensation increased from 37½ cents to 40 cents per day for each inmate. Magistrate J. H. Burnett was re-elected county commissioner and his salary remains the same, $200 per year.

The report of the county treasurer shows a deficit in all funds caused by the fact that few taxpayers have paid their 1908 taxes, the only collection being $11,000, which was paid into the treasury October 2, or the next day after the report is dated and that amount is not shown in the following summary of the reports on the different funds.

To Improve Roads.
The court voted to gravel portions of the Lovelaceville and Florence station, Blandville and Lovelaceville and Mayfield and Pool roads citizens along the routes of the proposed improvements to bear a portion of the cost, as has been done for several years in different sections of the county. The improvements will extend over 5½ miles of road.

Before adjournment Judge Lightfoot in a heart to heart talk to the members of the court complimented them on their economical administration.

APPEAL TAKEN FROM DECISION HOLDING COMMODITY CLAUSE UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Department of Justice Will Ask for Immediate Decision From Supreme Court.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—The government appealed from the decision of the federal court, holding the commodity clause in the Hepburn law unconstitutional and beyond the powers of congress to legislate. Owing to the importance of the case the supreme court will be asked to render an immediate decision.

SMITH CASE GOES TO GRAND JURY OF FAYETTE COUNTY

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6.—The grand jury has begun the investigation of the disappearance of Willis Smith, a student at Kentucky College, who has been missing two weeks. A boy told the police he saw Smith, a freshman, captured by sophomores and bound and placed in a box car, which was hauled away. It is feared Smith has perished. The faculty and students refuse to discuss the case. Authorities promise an indictment if the story is true.

tion of county affairs, which he believed exceeded that of any of their predecessors. He said that although vast improvements have been made to roads, 13 steel and concrete bridges and a sanitarium costing $25,000, have been built, the tax rate had been levied 24 cents and the county was collecting $20,000 less in taxes now than nine years ago. Notwithstanding this remarkable showing he said the court has been criticized and denounced for its extravagance in the administration of county affairs. Judge Lightfoot thought the criticism came from people who talked without knowing what they were talking about.

The court allowed the regular monthly claims and salaries, holding up the claim of the water company for water furnished the jail during September, which was $71. The court refused to grant the request of the coroner for additional compensation for hauling pauper corpses to the new county cemetery, because it is some distance farther from the city than the old cemetery. The court decided the present pay was enough.

Taken to Eddyville.
Will Hornsby, the negro charged with rape, was carried to Eddyville for safe keeping last night by Sheriff Rogers who acted under instructions from Judge Reed. Hornsby will be returned for trial tomorrow morning.

Fine Shooting By a Woman.

The Blisley rifle meeting this year will be notable for the presence of a remarkable lady shot, who has come all the way from Penak, in the Straits Settlements. The sportswoman, in question, Mrs. Douglas, has entered for the principal competitions, and is already practicing on the ranges in association with the Malay States team, in training for the Kolapore cup competition. Shooting in India, she has won several prizes, even making the highest possible at 1,000 yards, and her achievements at Blisley will be watched with much interest.

Lost Valuables

It was reported to the police department today by Lucile Sherkey that she lost her pocketbook on the Cairo train this morning. In the satchel she said was a small gold watch, two diamond rings, a small pocketbook and a roll of $40. She was en route to Louisville, and left on the noon train. The police failed to find the missing valuables.

MRS. THAW RETURNS.

Health Has Been Much Benefited by Her Stay in Europe.
New York, Oct. 6.—Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, arrived in New York today on the Red Star liner Elmdorf after several months abroad for her health. The steamer reached her pier from Antwerp and Dover this afternoon. Mrs. Thaw was accompanied by Miss Gertrude B. Ross, a trained nurse who also acts as her companion. Mrs. Thaw refused to talk to newspaper men. During the voyage she remained in her stateroom much of the time and very few of the first cabin passengers saw her even once during the entire time.

Mrs. Thaw's health seems much better than when she went abroad.

Boys smoking cigarettes in a lumber yard caused it. The girls were panic-stricken and were taken to neighboring houses. Flames were controlled after a hard fight with the assistance of the Batavia department.

Fire Ladders Repair Wagon.

The supply wagon of the fire department has been given a thorough overhauling and painting by the firemen of the No. 3 station. The wagon has been in service many years as the running gear was part of the first ladder truck in the Paducah fire department. However, after the repairs and the painting the wagon is as good as new. Besides the red painting "Fire Department" was painted on each side of the bed. Captain Slaughter and his fire ladders did a good job on the wagon and had it ready for service in a week's time.

LESS THAN HOUR OF LIBERTY AFTER WARRANT ISSUED

Elwood Neel, deputy United States marshal, probably made the record time in arresting an alleged violator of Uncle Sam's law, when he placed Archie Moreland, of Illinois, back of the bars. This morning he received a warrant for Moreland on a charge of selling liquor without paying a government license. Marshal Neel and City Jailor Wade Brown walked down Kentucky avenue, looking for the man. Marshal Neel saw three colored men, standing on the street, and he inquired for Moreland. He approached the right man, and right then the warrant was read to him. Moreland did not deny that he was the man. He was taken before United States Commissioner Armour Gardner, and was placed in jail. Judge Walter Evans will issue an order for Moreland to be returned to Danville, Ill., and it is probable that Marshal Neel will leave with his prisoner about Friday. After receiving the warrant it was less than an hour before Moreland was in jail.

The window was filled with whisky, but the thief failed to secure more than two quarts. The heavy glass was cracked but only a small opening was made by which to rob the window. TAFT DEFINES NAME "DEMOCRAT"

Introduced by One to Crowd at St. Joseph, Mo.

When Man Says I Am a Democrat It
Does Not Indicate Which Way
He Will Vote.

WORD IS ONLY HISTORICAL.

Macon, Mo., Oct. 6.—Judge Taft made three speeches in Kansas and thirteen in Missouri. Eight of the stops in the "Show Me" state were arranged upon urgent demands from the towns through which the special was to have passed without stopping. Throughout the day Taft hammered away on the necessity for the voters of the country to understand that Democratic tariff revision meant the destruction of the market and prices of the products of the farm; that the Republican revision meant the continuation of the present prices and prosperity. He told the Missourians about the Bryan proposition with respect to trusts—that the Nebraska would destroy them by putting trust-made articles on the free list and by making a law prohibiting the trust from manufacturing or controlling more than 50 per cent of any article. While such a law, Taft believed, would be very difficult to enact, he predicted that its enforcement would be most dangerous.

At South St. Joseph Taft was led into giving his definition of a Democrat, because of the introduction he received to a large gathering of stock yards employees, by John Donovan, president of the Stock Exchange at that place. Donovan paid the candidate this tribute:

"I don't want to appear before you in a false light. I am a Democrat, but I reserve the right to make a friend of a man of opposite political party and I think he deserves it, and I have that kind of a man by my side, one who is in every way a worthy American, a man whose history is known to you. You saw what we got here last year through his liberality when he was secretary of war." (Having reference to the great military conference that they had in St. Joseph.)

"I am not an office seeker and never have been, and no office within the gift of this government or state would I have. If this man is elected, I promise that if he called upon me for any special duty, I will quit anything I have on hand and go to him in a minute."

To this Taft replied: "Mr. Donovan says that he is a Democrat. That is only a historical designation. It does not refer to existing conditions, because there are so many definitions of what a Democrat is and ought to be, that when a man says he is a Democrat it does not indicate how he is going to vote."

Following the stock yards meeting Taft addressed the employees of the Burlington shops, made a speech to thousands at the Union station and gave a general review of Republican achievements at the opera which was packed to the doors.

Afterwards the party continued the trip stopping at many points en route here. Taft's speech at Macon following the lines of his utterances during the day.

BRADLEY SPEECH AT THE OPENING OF THE CAMPAIGN

In his speech at the campaign opening at Louisville, Senator Bradley said:

By reasons of good wages paid the workmen his purchasing power has greatly enhanced and in this way he has been enabled to buy many articles which he could not buy before. The manufacturer, for instance, can afford to sell, say 5,000 pairs of shoes a day at a profit of 25 cents each, when he could not have existed by selling 100 pairs at a profit of $1 per pair under the old methods of manufacture. In this way shoes have materially cheapened and the workman has been enabled, on account of increase in wages, to buy more shoes for his family than he could before. So it is as to all property; the demand has increased as the price was reduced. The same may be said as to other articles, such as silk, calicoes, etc.

Talks of Home Competition. In this way our wonderful home market has grown up until our internal commerce has reached the enormous sum of forty thousand millions of dollars. Home competition has thus cheapened the price of the articles used. Take watches, for instance. Before the adoption of protection a hunting case gold watch was worth $300; now it can be bought for $75.

The tariff stimulated men to build manufacturing; it has stimulated inventions; it has created a home market and it has blessed and prospered the people. Our workmen not only have more and live better than any others in the world, but have been enabled to educate their children was a panic in 1907, for which the cause of that panic, human intelligence cannot be held responsible. It must be borne in mind that in 1907 the panic was world-wide. It affected free trade England even more than the United States. On the 29th day of January, 1908, the forty workhouses in Greater London were filled to overflowing with boarders and paupers numbering 126,000, and applications for the admission of many others were refused. The panic of 1907 has been less severe than any ever experienced in this country. The panic in this country is attributable in a measure to the same causes which prevailed abroad, and in addition to startling disclosures of fraud and mismanagement of a number of the principal insurance companies and other great enterprises, corrupt financing in the Alton railway deal as practiced by speculating bankers in New York, over-speculation, unwarranted extension of credits and dishonest methods in business.

The effect of these conditions was to create suspicion and distrust in the public mind which destroyed confidence. Bankers became alarmed and refused to honor checks and the country was thrown into general confusion.

But the worst is over and we have been rapidly overcoming the trouble. All the banks long since resumed the payment of checks and we are marching forward to a complete recovery which can be retarded only by the election of William J. Bryan.

It must not be forgotten that during the panic of 1907, prices did not fall, but remained firm; that the national treasury was overflowing; we sold abroad largely more than we bought, our exports greatly exceeding our imports.

Compare this panic to 1893 under Cleveland. The expressed policy of of the principal farm products was in the neighborhood of $1,891,000,000, while in 1907 they had increased to the enormous value of nearly $4,000,000,000. In 1896 we produced of gold and silver $22,700,000; in 1907 we produced $127,192,000.

The Panic. But we are reminded that there was a panic in 1907, for which the Republican party, we are told, was responsible. We are asked to believe that a tariff under which we had unexampled prosperity—at home and abroad nearly eleven years was the cause of that panic. Human intelligence cannot be held responsible.

It must be borne in mind that in 1907 the panic was world-wide. It affected free trade England even more than the United States. On the 29th day of January, 1908, the forty workhouses in Greater London were filled to overflowing with boarders and paupers numbering 126,000, and applications for the admission of many others were refused.

But the worst is over and we have been rapidly overcoming the trouble. All the banks long since resumed the payment of checks and we are marching forward to a complete recovery which can be retarded only by the election of William J. Bryan.

It must not be forgotten that during the panic of 1907, prices did not fall, but remained firm; that the national treasury was overflowing; we sold abroad largely more than we bought, our exports greatly exceeding our imports.

of the principal farm products was in the neighborhood of $1,891,000,000, while in 1907 they had increased to the enormous value of nearly $4,000,000,000. In 1896 we produced of gold and silver $22,700,000; in 1907 we produced $127,192,000.

The Panic. But we are reminded that there was a panic in 1907, for which the Republican party, we are told, was responsible. We are asked to believe that a tariff under which we had unexampled prosperity—at home and abroad nearly eleven years was the cause of that panic. Human intelligence cannot be held responsible.

It must be borne in mind that in 1907 the panic was world-wide. It affected free trade England even more than the United States. On the 29th day of January, 1908, the forty workhouses in Greater London were filled to overflowing with boarders and paupers numbering 126,000, and applications for the admission of many others were refused.

The panic of 1907 has been less severe than any ever experienced in this country. The panic in this country is attributable in a measure to the same causes which prevailed abroad, and in addition to startling disclosures of fraud and mismanagement of a number of the principal insurance companies and other great enterprises, corrupt financing in the Alton railway deal as practiced by speculating bankers in New York, over-speculation, unwarranted extension of credits and dishonest methods in business.

The effect of these conditions was to create suspicion and distrust in the public mind which destroyed confidence. Bankers became alarmed and refused to honor checks and the country was thrown into general confusion.

But the worst is over and we have been rapidly overcoming the trouble. All the banks long since resumed the payment of checks and we are marching forward to a complete recovery which can be retarded only by the election of William J. Bryan.

the Democratic party and its agitation of the tariff question which led to the adoption of the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill in 1894, completely unhinged American industry.

Prices of all products fell to an alarming extent—wheat to less than 50 cents a bushel and corn and oats in the same proportion. The treasury was empty and bonds were issued for the payment of current expenses—not to furnish currency as in 1907.

The Trusts. But Mr. Bryan tells us he will settle all troubles with the trusts. He says that the tariff is the mother of trusts, forgetting the fact that in free-trade England there are more trusts, in proportion to population, than we have in the United States. He says he will accomplish relief by destroying them. This will be brought about by removing the tariff from all articles they manufacture. If this remedy is pursued the tariff will be entirely removed from iron, steel, rubber, silk, pearl buttons, nails, lumber, indeed, from everything that is used by the trusts. What will be the result of such legislation? The wages of all those employed in such industries will be reduced and in many instances destroyed, and thus the brunt will fall on the American workman and those dependent upon him for support. Thousands of homes will be desolated; thousands of men, women and children clothed in rags. On the other hand, Mr. Taft and the Republican party propose to regulate these trusts, to take them by the throat and say "thus far shall thou go and no farther." You shall not destroy competition. You shall not combine to raise the price of the article you manufacture. You shall not combine to decrease the value of manufacture. For when the trusts suspend manufacturing will either be curtailed or absolutely abandoned. The goods manufactured abroad by cheap labor will replace the goods manufactured at home. You must deal honestly with the people. We will protect the producer, and the laborer. We will not put you out of business, but we will protect the people from your greed and tyranny.

The only anti-trust laws on the statute books of the United States were formulated, introduced and passed by Republicans, and that is true also to the laws controlling the great railroads. In this, as in other respects, the Democratic party has shown no constructive statesmanship. It can criticize and find fault, but it cannot originate or construct anything.

Although the Sherman law was in existence during the administration of Mr. Cleveland, from 1893 to 1897, it was a dead letter, because he and his attorney general held it to be unconstitutional. Why, I ask, did not our Democratic friends invoke it to control the trusts and risk its fate to the courts? Can it be that there was not sufficient prosperity during that period to cause the formation of a trust; or did our critics fail to know such a statute was in existence; or were they criminally liable for failure to protect the people? It was first invoked by Theodore Roosevelt and enforced by a Republican attorney general. When it was passed on by the Supreme court of the United States the five Republican judges upheld its constitutionality, while three Democratic judges decided to the contrary. By its enforcement by a Republican president some of the trusts have been whipped into subjection, while prosecutions under that, the Elkins law and the Hepburn law (both of which are Republican measures), are pending against many others.

But pray, when did Mr. Bryan grow so inimical to trusts? In 1896 he frantically and lovingly embraced the great silver trusts that contributed nearly $300,000 to his campaign. So blind was he that he saw no impropriety in degrading the currency and compelling every capitalist and laborer to accept a 50-cent dollar in payment of one hundred cents of before indebtedness. Such a proposition of bald-faced robbery was never made to the American people. All the crimes charged to the Standard Oil company pale into insignificance when compared to it.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—At the suggestion of J. H. Norris, chairman of the Republican state committee of Oklahoma, President Roosevelt made public a letter he had written to Governor Haskell relative to shipments of whisky into prohibition territory.

Governor Haskell in a recent statement mentioned the fact that he had sent a letter from the president, and intimated that the writer might not like to have it given publicly.

This aroused interest in prohibition quarters and there were many inquiries from that quarter as to the contents of the letter.

Chairman Norris wrote to Secretary Loeb suggesting that the letter be made public in order to "check Haskell's grand stand," as he put it.

President Roosevelt wrote to Gov. Haskell as follows:

PARTY LEADER SCORES BRYAN.

Ideas of Democracy Not Represented in the Present Fight.

New York, Oct. 6.—John R. Dos Passos, a leader in the last Democratic campaign, has issued an open letter telling why he cannot support William J. Bryan. Mr. Dos Passos' chief reason is that Bryanism and not Democracy is making the race this year.

He declares he has voted against Bryan's radical ideas every chance he has had, and that the candidate has gained rather than lost in radicalism since he last was a candidate. He says Mr. Bryan "is in favor of class legislation—of pitting labor against capital, of making laws operating upon capital and excepting labor."

Mr. Dos Passos adds: "Mr. Bryan is in favor of federal and state governments owning the railroads of the country, and engaging in commercial pursuits, thus taking an important step toward paternalism. He would destroy the present national banking system by introducing through federal legislation, how and by what detail he does not say, a system of guaranteeing deposits. He is in favor of legislation against trusts by limiting the business of corporations to a certain percentage, thus by a method at once impracticable and unconstitutional endeavoring to stop the circulation of commerce.

"He is in favor of depriving the courts of injunctive and contempt powers in certain cases, thus on the most important occasions making them impotent to afford relief. And, to cap the climax, he has succeeded in persuading some labor organizations to embark in politics, thus cruelly destroying their influence and usefulness as eleemosynary and philanthropic factors—and becoming not the best friend but the worst enemy of labor."

VOTERS MUST REGISTER TODAY, IF THEY WOULD VOTE FOR PRESIDENT. POLLS OPEN FROM 6 A. M. TO 9 P. M. INFORMATION ABOUT PRECINCT BOUNDARIES MAY BE HAD BY CALLING REPUBLICAN HEADQUARTERS, EAST TENNESSEE PHONE 206; HOME 1400.

Berlin's Drink Percentage.

A German physician, Dr. Hirschfeld, has been computing the quantity of alcoholic drink consumed in Berlin. Berlin possessed three years ago 12,892 drinking shops—one for 610 inhabitants—in addition to 301 where wine only is sold. During the period the Berliners consumed 438,939,532 liters of beer, 24,704,525 liters of brandy, and 19,956,062 liters of wine. This amounts to an average annual consumption per head of population of 236 1/4 liters of alcoholic drink, at a cost of 100 marks—a mark being one shilling. As the average income of the Berliners, including women and children, is about 683 marks, it may be said that the Berliner spends a seventh part of his income in intoxicating drinks.—London Globe.

Daily Thought.

"Remember, youth once gone is gone;
 Deeds let escape are never to be done."
 —Browning.

Now, if those Bulgarians are as good as they are, they will have to live to protect Prince Ferdinand's throne. Bulgaria will be independent; but the Bulgarians will not be free.

Farmers of the country, who were poor in 1906, refused to bite at the free silver fallacy and the 50-cent dollar. Now that they have Oklahoma in the bank, they will watch Oklahoma's deposit guaranty a few years before adopting it.

Collections are bad throughout the Black Patch, because half the 1907 tobacco crop remains to be sold. But those, who have received their money remember when tobacco sold around three cents.

Governor Haskell's Standard Oil affiliations are important because he was chosen by a presidential candidate for treasurer and gatherer of campaign funds. The government granted the Prairie State Oil and Gas company a franchise to cross Indian lands with its pipe lines, not Oklahoma state lands.

THOSE STANDARD OIL TANKS.

Councilman Foreman for the second time has delayed the ordinance, providing for the removal of the Standard Oil company's tanks outside the city limits. They are located in the center of the city along the railroad track and already have caught fire once from a locomotive. The company recognizes the danger by promising in the future to take greater precautions. Insurance companies recognize the danger by raising the rates. The citizens recognize the danger by petitioning the general council to remove the menace. The fire chief recognizes the danger by requesting that the tanks be removed outside the city. The matter was referred to the ordinance committee to investigate and the result was the ordinance introduced. It was put off once more for all the councilmen to investigate; then the ordinance was referred for revision; now it goes to the city solicitor to ascertain why any further legislation is necessary.

Mayor Smith instructed the fire chief to prosecute the Standard Oil company for violation of the present ordinance, limiting the amount of oil to be stored in the city. The facts were not disputed and the company was fined. It brazenly set up technical objections and appealed. If a continuance is secured the case may dawdle in the courts for months, and in the meantime a conflagration may be started from the plant.

Solicitor Campbell advised the mayor to hold up, pending action of the council. A measure ordering the removal of all such institutions from the city would settle this matter finally and at once.

Nobody wants the tanks there, but the Standard Oil company, and since its attorneys and local newspapers have hushed up on the subject, we presume they are satisfied they have the legislation blocked in the lower board.

THE DEMOCRATIC SPIRIT.

Have our tentative social lines become fixed rapidly? We heard a man complain that Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., while employed as "wool sorter" in a mill in Connecticut at $5 the week, associates with the proprietor and department heads, as though that prevented his being a "sorter" in rough standing. What snobs we are—rich and poor, cultured and illiterate! Isn't the proprietor as good as his "wool sorters", and are not the "wool sorters" as good as the proprietor? There is a popular distinction between classes based on the amount of money members are able and willing to spend on clothes and amusements. That is why we say a man is "able to buy his way into society". Of course, he is—the kind of society that is based on money.

There is another sort of society, sometimes conforming for distances to the boundary lines of "money" society, that is based on congeniality, which often takes the form of culture and education. Don't we all ignore some and snub others, and cultivate others and "today" just a little and assume a trifle to gain our desired social ends?

It really is quite democratic to see the son of the president, the "wool sorter", associating with the employer's family; but because we unconsciously have accepted false distinctions and lost our own democracy of feeling, we are inclined to ridicule the genuine when we see it.

COL. WATTERSON'S POSITION.

Someone inquired why Colonel Henry Watterson is supporting Bryan so vigorously this year. We cannot read Colonel Watterson's mind, but he is editor of a paper owned by the Haldeman estate, and we can recite some facts in chronological order without drawing any conclusions.

The Courier-Journal fought Mr. Bryan in his previous campaigns. Last year Mr. Bryan made a tour of Kentucky in behalf of the candidates of Beckham and Hager. They were defeated, and legislators sent to Frankfort from Louisville by the Haldeman machine, in defiance of positive primary instructions, voted against Mr. Beckham. Later at the state convention at Lexington to select delegates to the Denver convention and to reorganize the party, the old Beckham crowd was ruled out of the party organization through a coalition between the Louisville ring and the western Kentucky congressmen.

On condition of the state voting for Bryan and the selection of Congressmen Stanley for governor next time.

At the Fifth district congressional convention Col. William Haldeman, whose candidate for mayor of Louisville committed suicide after being ousted by the court of appeals, and whose next candidate was defeated at the polls, made friends with John Whalen, proprietor of the notorious Buckingham theater and saloon.

These twin appeared in conjunction at Lexington, and now dominate the state organization. They dictated the delegation to Denver. That delegation supported Bryan for the nomination and Colonel Watterson has since been his chief champion. How much volition there was in the matter on Colonel Watterson's part, we are not able to judge.

THINKS HE MERITS HONORS.

In a recent issue of the White Republic, edited by Dr. John Francis Coffey, the following tribute was paid one of Paducah's citizens:

"Every honor done Frank M. Fisher, of Paducah, is tribute paid genuine worth in loyal man and patriot. The Presidential Postmasters' association have made him their president. A body composed of such intelligent Kentuckians may be always trusted to make fitting choice of official leaders."

The distinction conferred on Mr. Fisher cannot escape attention outside the state. It puts him forward more than one pace toward the high post that Kentuckians desire to see him hold in the first Taft administration, the office of postmaster general. "No southern Republican is better qualified; few men anywhere with stronger party claims. He will, as a member of the cabinet, measure up to high standards of departmental efficiency and of broad gauged Republican statesmanship."

SATIRE IS DANGEROUS.

Satire is a dangerous thing to handle. The writer of it presumes not only a degree of intelligence in his readers equal to the effort, but the point of view. Yesterday, amused at the efforts of Judge Taft's opponent to asperse him, The Sun undertook an elaborate expose of the main points made against him and the next morning paper drew the conclusion that The Sun had "thrown up the sponge", when we were just trying to help out with the arraignment of Judge Taft, to show how weak it is.

Now, we will have to explain to our feeble contemporaries:

We said President Roosevelt violated "time-honored political precedent" in ignoring the tricks of political corruption contributors away from the Republican party. We said he prosecuted monopolies and incurred their hate; we said he joined the people in support of Taft, because an effort was being made to gain control of both parties by the Standard crowd. The nomination of Taft saved the Republican party. We said Judge Taft opposed corporation contributions and that he refused to make political alliance with J. B. Foraker to get the delegates from his own state, because it would involve a "compromise of principle". But he won in spite of Foraker. We said he made a record in the Philippines, which he found in a state of insurrection; in Cuba; at Panama and in quieting the oriental misunderstandings; that while he found it and was sustained by the supreme court.

His opponents have been throwing all this up to him as if it was something wrong, and the idea tickled us so much that we summed it all up as the reason why a politician would tremble at the prospect of having as a candidate a man, who has a record for doing things, instead of just talking.

MARRIAGE MARKETS.

The marriage market (or fair) which was held recently at Ecaulines, in Belgium, has many counterparts elsewhere, says Pearson's Weekly.

In several of the more remote Swiss cantons, for example, there is held twice a year, in the spring and the autumn, the Tunsian girls attend in hundreds, each with her dowry, in coin and jewelry, disposed about her person. The "golden girdle of maidenhood" encircles her waist, and in it is an unheated dagger. When this is gently removed by a passing knight, and presently returned, it means that a proposal has been made.

A prettier custom prevails among the Ooroon maidens who, at stated intervals, assemble in the market place. In front of each is a lighted lamp, emblem of conjugal fidelity. A young man feels attracted? He gently blows upon the flame, extinguishing it. The girl relights it; it is a rejection. If she leaves it alone, the implied offer is acceptable.

Even in England these curious markets are not unknown, although they are not openly acknowledged as such. One has been held on St. Martha's Hill, Surrey, on each recurring Good Friday, during some centuries. And the statute and mop fair that are still celebrated in various rural localities are marriage marts in all but name.

The ring began when a thrust his finger through a hole in a pretty shell, and later learned to make rings of jet. The ring is very magical. Lord Ruthven, who helped to kill Riecio, gave Queen Mary a ring which was soverain against poison, and the generously replied with the present of her father's wonderful jeweled dagger, of French work, no longer in existence. Whether Ruthven toiled with this magnificent weapon in the affair of Riecio or used a cheaper article is uncertain.

In all events Mary based on the ring that was an antidote to poison a charge of sorcery against Ruthven. The judges of Jeanne d'Arc regarded with much suspicion her little ring of base metal, a gift from her parents inscribed with the sacred names, Jesus Maria.

It was usual to touch the relics of saints with rings; Jeanne d'Arc said that her ring had touched the body of St. Catherine, whether she meant of the actual saint or a relic of the saint, brought from Sinai to Florioles. The ring might contain a relic, or, later, a miniature. I fear that I do not believe in the virtues or vices of poison rings. Our ancestors, practically knew no poison, but arsenic, and Carthaginian science can scarcely have enabled Hannibal to poison himself with a drug contained under the stone of a ring.—Andrew Lang, in London Post.

Magic and Poison Rings.

The ring began when a thrust his finger through a hole in a pretty shell, and later learned to make rings of jet. The ring is very magical. Lord Ruthven, who helped to kill Riecio, gave Queen Mary a ring which was soverain against poison, and the generously replied with the present of her father's wonderful jeweled dagger, of French work, no longer in existence. Whether Ruthven toiled with this magnificent weapon in the affair of Riecio or used a cheaper article is uncertain.

In all events Mary based on the ring that was an antidote to poison a charge of sorcery against Ruthven. The judges of Jeanne d'Arc regarded with much suspicion her little ring of base metal, a gift from her parents inscribed with the sacred names, Jesus Maria.

It was usual to touch the relics of saints with rings; Jeanne d'Arc said that her ring had touched the body of St. Catherine, whether she meant of the actual saint or a relic of the saint, brought from Sinai to Florioles. The ring might contain a relic, or, later, a miniature. I fear that I do not believe in the virtues or vices of poison rings. Our ancestors, practically knew no poison, but arsenic, and Carthaginian science can scarcely have enabled Hannibal to poison himself with a drug contained under the stone of a ring.—Andrew Lang, in London Post.

THINKS HE MERITS HONORS.

In a recent issue of the White Republic, edited by Dr. John Francis Coffey, the following tribute was paid one of Paducah's citizens:

"Every honor done Frank M. Fisher, of Paducah, is tribute paid genuine worth in loyal man and patriot. The Presidential Postmasters' association have made him their president. A body composed of such intelligent Kentuckians may be always trusted to make fitting choice of official leaders."

The distinction conferred on Mr. Fisher cannot escape attention outside the state. It puts him forward more than one pace toward the high post that Kentuckians desire to see him hold in the first Taft administration, the office of postmaster general. "No southern Republican is better qualified; few men anywhere with stronger party claims. He will, as a member of the cabinet, measure up to high standards of departmental efficiency and of broad gauged Republican statesmanship."

The Port of Missing Men.

By Meredith Nicholson,
 Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles."

The baron looked at the key; he touched the silver box; his hand rested for a moment on the sword.

"It is a marvelous story—it is wonderful! Can it be true—can it be true?" murmured the ambassador.

"The documents will be the best evidence. We can settle the matter in twenty-four hours," said Judge Claiborne.

"You will pardon me for seeming incredulous, sir," said the baron, "but it is all so extraordinary. And these men, these prisoners?"

"They have pursued me under the impression that I am Frederick Augustus. Oddly enough, I too, am Frederick Augustus," and Armitage smiled. "I was within a few months of his age, and I had a little brush with Chauvet and Durand in Genoa in which they captured my cigarette case—it had belonged to Frederick, and the archduke gave it to me—and my troubles began. The emperor-king was old and ill. The disorders in Hungary were to cloak the assassination of his successor. Then the archduke Francis, Karl's reputed son, was to be installed upon the throne."

"Yes; there has been a conspiracy."

"And there have been conspirators? Two of them are safely behind the door, and somewhat through my efforts, their chief, Winkelried, should now be under arrest in Vienna. I had reasons, besides my pledge to Archduke Karl, for taking an active part in these affairs. A year ago I gave Karl's repudiation of his second son to Count Ferdinand von Stroebel, the prime minister. The statement was stolen from him for the Winkelried conspirators by these men we now have locked up in this house."

The ambassador's eyes blazed with excitement as these statements fell on him from Armitage's lips, but Armitage went on:

"I trust that my plan for handling these men will meet with your approval. They have chartered the Goetz W. Custer, a fruit carrying steamer lying at Morgan's wharf in Baltimore, which they expected to make off after they had finished with me. At one time they had some idea of kidnapping me, and it isn't my fault they failed at that game. But I leave it to you, gentlemen, to deal with them. I will suggest, however, that the presence just now in the West Indies of the cruiser Sophia Margaret, flying the flag of Austria-Hungary, may be suggestive."

He smiled at the quick glance that passed between the ambassador and Judge Claiborne.

Then Baron von Marhof blurted out the question that was uppermost in the minds of all.

"Who are you, John Armitage?"

And Armitage answered, quite simply and in the quiet tone that he had used throughout:

"I am Frederick Augustus von Stroebel, the son of your sister and of the Count Ferdinand von Stroebel. The archduke's son and I were school fellows and playmates. You remember as well as I my father's place near the royal lands. The archduke talked much of democracy and the new world of kings. Let me make my story short. I found out their plan of flight and slipped away with them. It was believed that I had been carried away by gypsies."

"Yes, that is true; it is all true! And you never saw your father—you never went to him?"

"I was only thirteen when I ran away with Karl. When I appeared before my father in Paris last year he would have sent me away in anger if it had not been that I knew matters of importance to Austria—Austria, always Austria!"

"Yes; that was quite like him," said the ambassador. "He served his country with a passionate devotion. He hated America. He distrusted the whole democratic idea. It was that which pointed his anger against you—that you should have chosen to live here."

"Then when I saw him at Geneva—that last interview—he told me that Karl's statement had been stolen and he had his spies abroad looking for the thieves. He was very bitter against me. It was only a few hours before he was killed as a part of the Winkelried conspiracy. He had given his life for Austria. He told me never to see him again, never to claim my own name, until I had done something for Austria. And I went to Vienna and knelt in the crowd at the funeral, and no one knew me, and it hurt me, oh, it hurt me, to know that he had given for me; that he had wanted a son to carry on his work, while I had grown away from the whole idea of such labor as his. And now—"

He uttered, his hoarse voice broke with stress of feeling, and his pallor deepened.

"It was not my fault. It was really not my fault. I did the best I could, and, by God, I've got them in the room there where they can't do any harm! And, Dick Claiborne, you are the finest fellow in the world and the squarest and bravest, and I want to take your hand before I go to sleep, for I'm sick—yes, I'm sick—and sleepy, and you'd better hand down that flag over the door. It's treason, I tell you! And if you see Shirley, tell her I'm John Armitage, John Armitage!"

The room and its figures rushed before his eyes, and as he tried to stand erect his knees crumpled under him, and before they could reach him he sank to the floor, with a moan. As they crowded about him, stirred slightly, sighed deeply and lay perfectly still.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation, you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been expelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for their ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Volk, of 983 Ellis Street, Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds of hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no stomach trouble will be taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. H. Caldwell, 57 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

PARIS DISPATCH SAYS

as the Bulgarians are confident that their army could march straight to Constantinople before the Turkish forces could be mobilized.

The view is now held here that there has been a double move on the part of Bulgaria and Austria-Hungary that these two countries are acting together, and that Germany and Italy were advised of it in advance. Russia also received intimation of the plans, but Iswolsky asserts that he was not let fully into the secret and in some respects was misled.

Servia is aroused.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 6.—News of Austria-Hungary's action with regard to the annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina has aroused Servia to the danger point. The streets are thronged with a wild mob, many of the rioters discharging revolvers and demanding war with Austria rather than annexation.

German Minister Scolded.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 6.—A dispatch from Constantinople says Kiamil Pasha, grand vizier, summoned the German ambassador and reproached him bitterly for Germany's part in inciting Bulgaria and Austria in their present plans. Baron Beberstein said that on his word of honor Germany was not guilty, had not been consulted with reference to the annexation, and did not approve of its ally's action.

Action Condemned.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 6.—The Russian press, like the Russian ministry, condemns Prince Ferdinand's action in declaring Bulgaria's independence as hasty and inopportune, but accepts the independence of Bulgaria as an accomplished fact.

Professor Mikukoff, leader of the constitutional Democrats, and editor of the Rech, although always favoring the Bulgarians, arraigns in his paper the new monarch as almost a traitor to the Slav cause in handing over Bosnia to the merits of the hated Austrians. Baron Von Aehrenthal, he says, would not have dared to annex Bosnia and Herzegovina without simultaneous action on the part of Bulgaria. He declares that the Russian foreign minister is also guilty of participation in this unwarranted act, since he knew to a certain extent and acquiesced in the annexation.

The Novoe Vremya hopes that Turkey will not attach importance to the proclaiming of Bulgaria's independence, which does not affect the real status quo. The Novoe Vremya, however, takes a different view of the annexation of the provinces to Austria, which is equivalent to a dismemberment of the Turkish empire. If Turkey protests against this, all the powers, including Russia, the paper asserts, will support her.

British Statement.

London, Oct. 6.—Concerning the Bulgarian situation the following official statement was issued by the British foreign office this evening:

"His majesty's government cannot admit the right of any power to alter an international treaty without the consent of the other parties to it, and it therefore refuses to sanction any infraction of the Berlin treaty and declines to recognize what has been done until the views of the other powers are known, especially those of Turkey, which is more directly concerned than any one else."

Germany's Views.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The German official views in the situation with regard to Bulgarian independence and the annexation of Bosnia by Austria-Hungary is set forth in a statement which was issued last night. It says:

"Germany will not depart from its position or reserve while awaiting the decision of the Turkish cabinet with which the question of peace or war momentarily lies. It is possible that despite its peaceful disposition, Turkey may be obliged to draw the sword with the virtually simultaneous issue of the proclamation of Bulgaria's independence and Austria's annexation of the occupied provinces. This did not result from a conspiracy on the part of the two countries. Austria has the right of annexation according to the terms of the Berlin treaty, but under this treaty Bulgaria does not possess these rights."

A Pittsburg Clump On Broadway Got Money That He Didn't Want.

They are telling a story on Broadway about a certain rich man from the oil districts about Pittsburg and a well known New York restaurant, says the New York Telegram. The rich man was in the habit of coming to the bar of the place in question every day at the same time and exhibiting a roll of bills, the outer one of which bore Uncle Sam's promise to pay a thousand dollars. As soon as the drinks were served the rich man threw the thousand dollar bill on the counter. The bartender would point out that even in the most prosperous of cafes it was not easy suddenly to change a thousand-dollar bill. The Pittsburger would then select a pebbled one dollar bill from out the roll and settle his indebtedness.

This was repeated day after day until mine host and his assistants began to weary of it. It was determined to put an end to the display. The boss descended into the district of small banks—Italian, Scandinavian, Hungarian—which are in close proximity to the water front, and there bought up all the soiled and tattered money he could. All the bills purchased were of the lowest possible denomination. It made a formidable and unpleasant package.

The next time the thousand-dollar business was offered the bartender, with officious politeness, passed the greasy assortment of ragged bills into the Pittsburger's unwilling hands. The billionaire hasn't been seen in the place since.

To Make Sure.

It is not seldom when one is wrapped in keen interest of the proceedings in police court and feeling deeply at heart for the welfare of the unfortunate character who is destined to become a member of the chain gang that his sentimental and pathetic feelings are offset with a bit of stubborn wit.

Such an instance was manifest in Judge Mullooney's court the other day when an aged colored gentleman was brought before the bar of justice to answer to a charge of maintaining a nuisance. The clerk read the information to the defendant and asked him if he was "guilty" or "not guilty."

The aged defendant stood in silence, and the clerk repeated the interrogation, "Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Continued silence on the part of the prisoner prompted the judge to say, in his tender and merciful manner characteristic of his judicial attitude: "What we wish to know, uncle, is whether you are guilty or not guilty. What is your plea?"

"Well, yo' Honah," replied the old man with a little hesitation, "I reckon Ise guilty; but if I ain't too much trouble, yo' Honah, I'd like to be tried, so as to make sho."

After making sure the old man was guilty, "de cote truck" his usual formula to abate the nuisance.—Washington Star.

SHOE for WOMEN

GOOD TO LOOK UPON—A COMFORT TO WEAR

The women of America are year by year becoming more and more attached to La France shoes—a shoe made in strict accordance with the latest Parisian styles adapted to the uses and high standards of the American women.

Women are attracted by this shoe first because of its refined and beautiful appearance. Then they find—often much to their surprise—that no other shoe they ever wore was so remarkably comfortable or held its shape so well.

This is indeed a rare combination to be found in one shoe—due to new and improved methods of leather selection and workmanship.

Mere description does not do this shoe justice—trying it on is a revelation. We hope you will come in and try on a pair of La France shoes, as we think they will give you some entirely new ideas.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA, ACNE, TETTER ETC.

The skin is an index to the quality of the blood. Eczema, Acne, Tetters, pimples, rashes, eruptions, etc., show that some unhealthy humor or acid impurity is diseasing and corrupting the circulation, so that instead of supplying nourishment and strength to the fine, delicate tissues of the skin, it is continually pouring out its acid and unhealthy accumulations. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., may relieve some of the itching and other discomfort caused by skin troubles, and for this reason should be used, but such treatment cannot reach the humor-laden blood, and therefore cannot cure. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only cure for skin diseases. S. S. S., a purely vegetable preparation, is the best and quickest remedy. It goes down into the circulation and neutralizes and removes the acids, impurities and humors, thoroughly purifies the circulation and permanently cures skin diseases of every kind. When S. S. S. has driven the humors and impurities from the blood, and cooled and cleansed the acid-heated circulation, every symptom passes away, the skin is again nourished with rich, healthful blood and the trouble cured, as the cause has been removed. NEW CHADWICK CRIME REVEALED

Smuggled $3,000,000 Worth of Gems in Spite of Sleuths.

Inspector Induced to Overlook Offense on One Occasion—Bribed Clerk in Paris Establishment.

STORY READS LIKE ROMANCE

New York, Oct. 6.—Throughout the erratic and varied criminal career of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, whose persuasive eloquence caused some of the shrewdest financiers of the country to part with their money, there was never a hint that she was a smuggler.

During her lifetime she is declared to have smuggled into the United States merchandise mostly jewels, worth $2,000,000. With the 60 per cent tariff added, the value would be swelled to $3,000,000.

Melted Inspector's Heart.

On one occasion, at least, it is learned that a collector of the port, N. N. Straubman, mistakenly returned to her a diamond necklace worth a fortune on a plea made by her at the custom house that she purchased all of the stones in this country.

"What more can the world want to know about me?" Mrs. Chadwick asked on the day of her conviction.

That there is much more to still be learned is revealed here for the first time, more than a year after Mrs. Chadwick died in the Ohio penitentiary, by William T. Theobald former confidential agent of the United States treasury in his book, "Defrauding the Government; Talks of Smuggling."

"The case of Cassie Chadwick," as the author refers to it, is startling and the part which Collector Straubman played in the return of her necklace is intensely interesting.

The author makes no effort to explain the collector's prompt return of the jewels.

Why Secret Was Kept.

That the knowledge of this particular phase of her vast career did not extend outside the official circle is due to the fact that at the time of her prosecution in 1903 she was indicted only for certain individual fraudulent transactions.

Mr. Theobald says that as a special agent of the treasury department he first became associated with the "Cassie Chadwick smuggling case" on one of his trips to Europe, May 17, 1902, and became cognizant of her methods of ordering jewelry and stones in Paris. Maj. Williams, who was at that time in charge of the Paris office, having ascertained that she had an arrangement with a certain jeweler there to set precious stones and rare jewels to order to her, finally bribed a clerk in the employ of this jeweler to part with the secrets of his employer for a desirable money consideration.

Carefully Concealed Moves.

In pursuance of this plan with this clerk it was agreed that all of Cassie Chadwick's orders should be displayed in the window of this jewelry store.

The arrangement was carried out, and in this way Mr. Theobald was enabled to photograph every piece of jewelry which had been made up to her orders, this alone forming most convincing evidence that the unfortunate woman's statement, which she made in court at the time of her trial and conviction, to the effect that she did not "import merchandise or jewelry," was a perjured one.

Up to this time, however, in spite of every possible effort, so carefully did Mrs. Chadwick guard her movements that the officials had not been able to discover them, or on what steamers she left port, either in America or in Europe on her many trips.

Finally it was learned that she would arrive from Europe on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, June 17, 1902, and was met by Mr. Theobald on her arrival there.

Had Special Clients.

The customs agent noticed that Mrs. Chadwick was waiting in the saloon until the inspection of the baggage of the other passengers had been completed, and upon asking her if she had made her declarations had suspicions aroused by her assertion that she was acquainted with the forms to be gone through.

According to her statement, the dutiable articles in her possession consisted of only a "few second-hand string pearls and a few pieces of jewelry," (just what would constitute a "second-hand pearl" no one has yet been able to determine, but the deputy received the statement without flinching), of no relative value, and though these pearls were unstrung they formed a complete necklace on which, and the small articles of jewelry above mentioned, the revenue officers collected about $10,000 at the 60 per cent rate of duty.

It's a Good Sound Common Sense Policy

To use medicines only of KNOWN COMPOSITION, and which contain neither alcohol nor habit-forming drugs. It is foolish—often dangerous to do otherwise. The most intelligent people, and many of the most successful, conscientious physicians, follow this judicious course of action. The leading medical authorities, of all schools of medicine, endorse the ingredients composing Dr. Pierce's medicines. These are plainly printed on wrappers and attested under oath. There's no secrecy; an open publicity, square-deal policy is followed by the makers.

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, which contains neither alcohol (which to most women is the rankest poison) or other injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY for women, the composition of which is so perfect and good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient, in plain English on its outside bottle-wrapper, and attest the correctness of the same under oath.

We have a profound desire to avoid all offense to the most delicate sensitiveness of modest women, for whom we entertain the most sincere respect and admiration. We shall not, therefore, particularize here concerning the symptoms and peculiar ailments incident to the sex for which Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has for more than 40 years proven such a boon. We cannot, however, do a better service to the afflicted of the gentler sex than to refer them to Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a great family doctor book of 1000 pages, bound in cloth and given away gratis, or sent, post-paid, on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps—to cover cost of mailing only. All the delicate ailments and matters about which every woman, whether young or old, single or married, should know, but which their sense of delicacy makes them hesitate to ask even the family physician about, are made plain in this great book. SMITH THINKS MISSING STUDENT MET FOUL PLAY.

Father Almost Heart-Broken—Records Show Misdeeds of University Boys.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6.—Ernest Smith, brother of W. E. Smith, the student of Kentucky State University, who so mysteriously disappeared thirteen months ago, late last night, in his anxiety and grief over the loss of his brother, cast aside all fear of the vengeance of the students which has before kept him silent and made the following statement:

"I am of the same opinion now that I was on the morning after my brother's disappearance, namely, that he has met with violence at the hands of other students of the university. I do not believe that I shall ever see him alive again. I am firmly convinced that he is now dead. I believe that my brother went to some meeting of the students that night and some of them picked him to play some hazing prank upon. My brother was not a man who would submit to any treatment of that kind, and I feel sure that they made without intending to, inflicted serious or fatal injuries or disposed of him in some way that has resulted in his death.

This is, in condensed form, the statement made by Ernest Smith, who is himself a sophomore at the Kentucky State University and has heretofore reiterated that he did not believe the students had anything to do with his brother's disappearance.

Prof. Smith, of Hindman, before leaving here a few days ago, expressed the same opinion as Ernest Smith finally did last night.

A Little Tongue Cooled.

"I did not speak his language and he did not speak mine," said a gray-haired woman with several boys calling her "mother." "It was Wednesday, that terribly hot morning, and I was out doing my marketing. He was a thin, brown-skinned little chap, trying to sell boxes of cherries. He looked tired, warm and perspiring. 'Poor little chap,' I thought. Then I put on a smile I use when I am entertaining my minister, and his wife at tea, took the little cherry peddler's arm, put a penny in his hand, and pointed to the ice cream cart by the curb. 'You,' I said, and nodded emphatically. 'Well, if you could have seen the delight in that boy's eyes and the thanks he chattered in his own tongue you would go and do like wise some hot day. I intend to cool at least one hot little tongue with ice cream or ice every day this summer.'

"Grandfather," began Jimmy, as he gazed thoughtfully at the aged man's shining head, "why don't you tell yourself a half-raising story?" Judge.

It's a pity some people can't marry for brains instead of money.

ORIGIN OF LAKES.

English Geologist Advances a Highly Novel Theory.

The position of the earlier geologists, standing as they appeared to do, on the solid foundations of the earth, once seemed to be impregnable. But recent discoveries, notably that of radium, have unsettled many of the older beliefs and theories. And now a very eminent geologist has advanced a new and very interesting theory regarding the origin of lakes and mountain tarns.

Hitherto glacial action has been accepted as a sufficient explanation of the existence of these bodies of water, but the investigations carried on by Prof. Garwood of England tend to establish the probability that in many instances the gradual solution of dolomite is the cause. In his recent address before the Geologists' association at University College, London, a carefully prepared model of Lake Ritoum, Val d'Aoste, near Airolo, on a scale of about five inches to the mile, gave a very clear illustration of the conditions supporting Prof. Garwood's theory, and the opinion was expressed by those present that he had made out a good case.

And what is dolomite? The unscientific reader may ask. Dolomite, named in honor of the French geologist, Dolomieu, is a calcium-magnesium carbonate that crystallizes in the hexagonal system. It varies in color from white to reddish or greenish white, and in some varieties, even reaches brown and black. Dolomite, both as a mineral and a rock, is found in various parts of Europe and the United States. The crystallized varieties include the pearl spar, which is so called from its luster. The compact varieties are used as building stone.

The houses of Parliament in London were built from a variety found at Belvoir Moor, and St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York City, is built from a variety found in Westchester county, N. Y. Calcined and slaked, dolomite yields a cement offering considerable resistance to the action of water. The same mineral, when treated with sulphuric acid, yields calcium and magnesium sulphates and is used in the manufacture of Epsom salts.

Friend of the Farmer's Wife.

The farmer's wife will now feel there is one man in the country who understands her position and be the highest in authority. Farmers' wives grow old before their time and farmer's daughters cannot help noticing it and dreading to follow in their mother's footsteps. "If you have to drop some one, drop one hired hand rather than the hired girl," said the president. The advice is good, but the trouble is to get the one hired girl in the first place. The distaste of domesticity for country life and especially life on the farm has greatly intensified rural problems and that as much as anything has helped to depopulate the rural sections. The housewife of today is thus in worse plight than she was forty years ago. We believe this is a transition period and that a remedy will be found though as yet it is not plainly in sight. Leisure, recreation, social intercourse are the right and the need of country mothers and daughters, and not until some way of securing these in reasonable measure is found will the farm problem be solved.—Boston Transcript.

STANDARD TANKS SECURE NEW DELAY

Councilman Foreman Has Action Postponed Again.

Considerable New Business Introduced in Meeting of Lower Board Last Night.

ALL MEMBERS ARE PRESENT

STANDARD OIL CASE.

On motion of Councilman Foreman again the ordinance designed to protect citizens of the west end from danger by fire and relieve them of high insurance rates was delayed once more last night.

The ordinance committee was instructed at last night's council board meeting to bring in an ordinance, providing for the issuing of $100,000 in bonds, to be voted on at the next regular election, November 3, for the purpose of purchasing the plant and equipment of the Paducah Water company and the city take charge of it. Councilman Young presented a petition signed by between the five and six hundred.

Mr. Young declared the city could save money and make money if it had control of the water supply. Mr. Young had an ordinance all ready prepared to put before the board, providing for the bond issue, but the required three days' notice had not been given the councilmen, and because the ordinance had not been before the ordinance committee, action was postponed. The mayor will be asked to call a special meeting either Thursday or Friday night, so that action can be taken on the ordinance and in the mean time the members will be provided with copies and the ordinance will go before the ordinance committee.

For River Improvement.

Capt. Saunders A. Fowler asked the council in behalf of the Commercial Club and the business men of Paducah for $200 to be put with $500 collected by Mr. Fowler and Mr. Harry Potter, and the money be given to the Ohio Valley Improvement association for the improvement of the Ohio river, in making a 9-foot stage from Cairo to Pittsburgh the year round. Other cities along the Ohio river have made donations and Paducah will make one of $500. The council granted Mr. Fowler $200 for the purpose. The money to be paid out of the contingent fund.

The Standard Oil ordinance was again brought up in the meeting, and on motion of Mr. Foreman, it was referred to the city solicitor for information, why this ordinance was needed when there was all ready an ordinance in effect covering the same ground, which there is not. Mr. Foreman said he had looked over the ordinance and found one that covered exactly the same things for which the new ordinance provides. The Standard Oil ordinance was referred back to the ordinance committee at the last meeting, to be revised, and the ordinance committee sent it back to the council for action.

A message from the mayor was read, again reminding the council not to pass any ordinance that would be an expense to the city. Pictures showed that a number of departments are already overdrawn on their accounts and that there are still four months of the year. Continuing in the bills now out against the different departments, those that are overdrawn are the street department, $5,400; fire department, $382; police, $658; riverside, $4,000. When the work now being done is completed, and there are a number of smaller over drawn accounts. The street department will cease work with bad weather and catch up.

A number of reports were received and filed. Health Officer, Dr. H. P. Sights' quarterly report was received and filed showing 106 deaths, including non-residents, 9; contagious diseases, scarlet fever cases flagged, 5; diphtheria, 6; Smallpox, 1; population, 29,000; per cent of death rate per thousand people, 13.8-10.

Report of Milk and Meat Inspector Dr. Ed Farley, report of City Treasurer John J. Dorian, report of Chief of Police James Collins, were all received and filed. Report of joint finance committee, showing accounts amounting to $12,961.34, were allowed.

The board of public works was authorized to pay for the improvement of the levee out of the contingent fund. The cost will be about $400. The improvement will be a road to haul heavy loads from the wharf boat to the top of the steep hill. The work was ordered done about one year ago.

The Water company reported the mains on Harrison street between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets completed and the mains on the Mayfield road completed and one plug placed on each main. The report was received and filed and the fire plugs placed on the rental list.

The improvement committee was instructed to rebuild the chimney on the house on the pest house farm, and to place a watering trough at the corner of Thirteenth and Tennessee streets, and to place another trough

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness or displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from day to day, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. E. Ellsworth, of Marville, N. Y., and to Mrs. W. P. Boyd, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who say:

"I was not able to do my own work, owing to the female trouble from which I suffered. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully, and I am so well that I can do as big a day's work as I ever did. I wish every sick woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

How India Ink is Made. "Artists, photographers and draughtsmen who use India ink in their work, often find that instead of being an intense black, as it ought to be, it is frequently a disagreeable brown, which impairs the quality and sometimes destroys the effect of their sketches.

"The reason is found in the circumstances under which the India ink is made," says a local photographer. "India ink is in general use all over Asia; in fact, except in the government offices of India and French Cochinchina, no other writing fluid is used. The writing is generally pen, the ink is highly gummed, so that it stands out in relief on the paper or parchment; and it will affect it, and it can be removed only by a vigorous use of the scraper.

"In both India, and China there are thousands of people who manufacture the ink as a side line to their regular business, working at it in the winter, at night and on days when they are not otherwise employed. It is made by burning some kind of oil in a lamp with a very long chimney, usually made in joints which can be taken apart, for greater convenience in cleaning out the soot which makes the ink. Almost any kind of vegetable oil will answer, and in districts where petroleum is found even coal oil is used, in making the cheaper grades. The best kind is made from Sesame oil. No matter what oil is used, however, the combustion must be slow, imperfect and made to yield as much soot as possible. After every burning, the chimneys are cleaned, the soot placed in a box, and when a sufficient quantity is gathered, it is moistened with gum water, pressed into cakes or sticks, dried and covered with silver, tin or gold foil, sometimes with only a coating of gum, to prevent its soiling the fingers.

"There are large factories in both China and India, the managers of which take pains to have their product of uniform grade, but the little burners who do the work at their homes are not particular about the quality of the oil they use, or about the process, so their soot is always unreliable and just as likely to be brown as black.

BRYAN TOURING HIS OWN STATE

Received at Havelock, Neb.
Last Night.

Taft's Managers Are Receiving Money From Trusts, Says Nebraskan—Scores Speaker.

SAYS TAFT FEARS PUBLICITY

Havelock, Neb., Oct. 5.—Bryan was received here in a delirium of enthusiasm. His arrival from Lincoln shortly before 9 o'clock was the signal for a great demonstration.

His remarks dwelt mainly on the subject of campaign publicity, the election of senators by direct vote, and the labor planks of the Denver platform. He was unsparring in his attacks on Speaker Cannon, Sherman and Taft.

Discussing the question of campaign contributions Bryan declared that his Republican opponent had repudiated the action of those who had nominated him. The Democrats, he said, had been trying to find out why the Republicans had opposed publicity before elections, but that Taft had told them why.

"Now what is Taft's objection? Why the objection is that if you publish the contributions before election, political opponents will take advantage of the publication and draw wrong inferences and false impressions that will prejudice the people against the candidates of the Republican party.

"Now do you know what it means to say that? Why, it means that Taft is conscious that his committee is receiving contributions which, if they were known would excite criticism by the people. Now that is the admission that he makes."

Bryan charged that the Republicans were opposed to publicity because, he said, there were contributions being made to the Republican campaign fund which, if known, would make one feel that they were for the purpose of mortgaging the party in advance to special interests and that, he declared, had been the trouble with legislation.

The people had been unable to get good legislation because the great corporations had contributed the money to put into office men under obligations to them.

"Yes, they had Cannon, of Illinois, there," said a man in the crowd. "He's only one of them," quickly replied Bryan; who added that the wicked Cannon was the only one. "But my friends," he said, "Cannon is only a sample. There are many others that are just as bad and one of them was nominated for vice president on the Republican ticket for Sherman is just as bad as Cannon on all matters of legislation. Sherman stood next to Cannon and when Sherman went down into Cannon's district the other day he delivered himself of an eulogy on Cannon that was more eloquent than any he had pronounced on Taft."

Spanish Emeralds.

"Fine old Spanish emeralds" is a phrase which means something quite different from what it seems to imply. There never was an emerald mined in Spain, but after the conquest of Peru the conquerors brought home great quantities of loot, of which emeralds formed an important part. In this way the finest emeralds came into possession of the old Spanish families, and as very few had been seen in Europe previous to that time all the best stones soon became classed as fine old Spanish emeralds. Today the expression still applies to the best emeralds of any source.—New York Sun.

Forests and Freshets.

The south's earnestness for the establishment of the White Mountain Appalachian forest reservation will be intensified by the floods and freshets which are working such havoc in Georgia and the Carolinas. At every recent session of Congress southern members have recited the stories of floods past and predicted floods to come, and the predictions are amply justified. In the south, as in New England, the mountain regions are being denuded of the forests that once absorbed the moisture and thereby minimized the flood danger. The establishment of the reserve is one of the few movements since the war which have brought New England and the South together, and an improvement prevails that the Southern members display more energy in its behalf than their Northern allies, possibly because being in the opposition the southerners do not stand so much in awe of the speaker.—Boston Transcript.

ENTHUSIASM IS AT ITS HEIGHT

Football Victory Stimulates High School.

Team Now Intends to Make Season
Unbroken Series of Victories.

AND PROFESSOR EVANS TALKS

Enthusiasm abounds at the High school over the first victory of the football team. Already the gossip of the students is to make it a clean victory during the season, and the boys are anxious to have a season without a score against them. Next Saturday the crack Marion, Ill., High school football squad will play at the League park. Marion has had an undefeated football team for the past three years, and the High school boys are eager for the honor of smothering the record. Considerable expense has been gone to for the game, and a liberal patronage is expected from the army of football enthusiasts. It will be the opening of the game in Paducah for the season of 1908.

To help the football boys to victory the girls of the school have organized a rooters club to make a lot of noise and give yells. The rooting part of the game will be watched more this year than ever, and the students promise to march forth with new yells to stimulate the padded warriors to better work. The girls athletic association is behind the rooters club.

As far as practice goes the High school boys are taking to it readily as they realize that hard work must be had to make a perfect machine. During the first game Saturday several of the players were new to the regular game, but by next Saturday Coach Evans expects to have them accustomed to bucking a brick wall, and tearing it down. This morning Professor Evans said, "I have no complaints to make on defensive work of the boys as that is really better than I expected, but we are after speed now. This week will be one of hard practice, and speed will be looked after. The players have plenty of wind to play a nice game, but we want a fast snappy squad, and the games will be ours."

Games have been secured with Hopkinsville, Madisonville, with return dates. Metropolis will play in Paducah October 17, and if the local team wins from Marion a return game will be arranged to be played in the Illinois town.

RAILROAD NOTES

D. J. Kavanaugh, of Louisville, superintendent of telegraph construction for the Illinois Central railroad, was here today.

B. B. Linn, special agent for the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis and Claim Agent Broomey left this morning for a trip down the Memphis division.

The long distance telephone lines installed by the Illinois Central railroad company are working perfectly now and are in practical use by the railroad. The lines which the train dispatchers will use are not yet complete.

J. T. Sweeton, the section foreman, of Brighton, Tenn., who was brought to the hospital Sunday in a serious condition, as the result of a fall from a freight train, is still in a critical condition and may die. Sweeton's skull was fractured and he was otherwise injured by the fall.

Fred McCreary, secretary of the grievance committee for the Railway Carmen will leave this week for Cleveland, Ohio, on business for the order.

William Hyatt, a boiler-maker's helper, left this morning for Mayfield, on a hunting trip.

His Preference.

The late Bishop Coleman, of Delaware, was somewhat deaf. Once while attending a banquet he was assigned to a young lady who did not know of his affliction. In consequence, conversation was found to be somewhat difficult. In a burst of enthusiasm the young lady inquired, "Bishop, do you like bananas?"

At first the prelate did not reply, but upon the question being repeated he admitted, confidentially, "I must say I still prefer the old-fashioned night gown."

HIS MIND AFFECTED

IMAGINES NIGHT RIDERS HAVE WOUNDED A BROTHER.

Well Known North Christian Citizen
In Distress at Evansville—Will Be Brought Home.

Worry over the night riding outrages near his home caused James A. Boyd, a well-to-do old farmer, living near Hopkinsville, Ky., who came to Evansville, Friday, to become temporarily deranged and spend Friday night wandering in the country, trying to locate a relative whom he believed had been wounded by the night riders. The old man thought he heard the voice of a wounded man calling him and, following it, he wandered as far as Spencer's station on the E. S. & N. traction line. He was found Saturday morning by Eugene Angel, a farmer, who brought him to the city yesterday afternoon.

Boyd is 61 years old. He is a fine looking old man with a fresh, ruddy face and neatly trimmed beard. He wore a black suit and in every way he looked like a prosperous farmer. When taken to police station yesterday afternoon by Angel, he protested and won't the regard of the officers by the courteous way in which he argued against being held.

Boyd belongs to a family prominent in Hopkinsville and the vicinity. He is an old friend of John W. Logsdon, superintendent of the St. Louis and Henderson division of the L. and N. railway.

"Boyd was standing in my yard when I got up this morning," said Angel yesterday. "He asked me for a cup of water, saying, 'John is lying down there wounded. I must take him a drink of water.'"

"His manner was nervous, but quiet. I went with him, and he led me almost a half mile down the road before I realized that his mind was deranged. He began talking about the night riders and said they had shot John."

"They put burning stuff on me," he told me.

"What sort of stuff," I asked.

"I don't know what you call it," he said, passing his hand over his brow, bewilderedly. "But it burns one's flesh off. And they can shoot it seventy-five miles."

"I persuaded the old man to come back to the house and lie down," said Angel. "He slept for an hour and then jumped up saying he must catch the 2:35 L. and N. train to his home."

"I gave him dinner and then drove him to town. On the way he told me things about his farm between Keokuk's station and Hopkinsville. He said he had a wife and five children."

Angel took the old man to police station, fearing to trust him on the train. When Boyd found that Angel was driving to the police station he tried to seize the reins and turn the horse toward the L. and N. depot.

"My wife will be so worried if I do not come home," he pleaded.

Captain Stockmeyer questioned the old man. When Boyd said that he knew Superintendent Logsdon of the L. and N., Stockmeyer telephoned the L. and N. official. Logsdon sent his friend, J. F. Campbell, a Hopkinsville man, to the police station.

When Campbell reached the station, Boyd was sleeping quietly, having been persuaded by the officers to lie down and rest. Campbell and Logsdon will arrange to have him returned to his home.

"Boyd belongs to a splendid family," said Logsdon, last night. "He has always taken an important part in the politics of the county. I never knew a Boyd of that vicinity who was not a splendid man. The old man has become temporarily deranged through worrying over the night rider depredations.—Evansville Courier.

Mr. Derrington was a life-long member of the Methodist church. The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. G. T. Sullivan, pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, Wednesday morning at 10 a. m., at the residence of Mrs. Joseph Mattison, 1611 Trimble street. The burial will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

Care of Gold Fish.

The secret of success in caring for gold fish is to keep the water they are in fresh and sweet. Their globe should be emptied and its water renewed as often as every second day. Lift each fish out gently in a glass full of water, empty the globe, wash it out, then put in fresh water and put the fish back again. Clear, sweet rain water should be used, and its temperature should be raised to 75 or 80 degrees by warming a part of it. Sparkling well water is too cold for the fish to thrive in, and too pure, for the annihilation of rain water forms an important part of the food of these fish. They need no other sustenance than a very few bread crumbs sprinkled in their water daily, for over-feeding will kill them very quickly.—September Housekeeper.

River stage at 7 o'clock this morning 1.6, a stand since yesterday morning.

The City of Saitillo tied up in the "ducks' nest" last night, after transferring her freight and live stock to the railroad to be shipped on to St. Louis. The Saitillo delivered her freight to the railroad at Brookport. With the Saitillo tied up in the Paducah harbor, it makes the number of boats tied up on account of low water, packet boats and towboats 48, and about a million dollars invested in barges are also tied up at Paducah. All these boats are put aside on account of the low water. The water is lower in the rivers than it has been for years and the prospects are for still lower water. The only communication Paducah has with the outside world by means of the river, is the Cowling in the Metropolis and Paducah trade and two light-draft Tennessee river packets: The R. Dunbar, chartered in the place of the Kentucky, and the Richardson, which will start out tomorrow evening in the place of the Clyde, and a small gasoline boat. The Noxall, with a large, that entered the Smithland and Paducah trade today. Paducah is hardly a river town, with communication shut off entirely from the Cumberland, upper Ohio and lower Ohio. There is one hope for Paducah and that is to get the nine-foot stage, which is the subject of conversation of all river men and business men shipping freight by river.

Capt. Charles Street, pilot on the Saitillo, took the Harth to Calro this morning, and from there the Harth will take a tow of West Kentucky coal to Memphis. "Longhairs Billy" Smith will pilot the Harth from Calro to Memphis. Captain Street will go from Calro to Grand Tower by rail and pilot the Egan south with a tow of coal.

The gasoline boat Noxall, with a large, entered the Smithland and Paducah trade today. She will leave every afternoon at 3 o'clock for Smithland and return the next morning.

The J. B. Richardson will be ready to take the place of the Clyde tomorrow in the Tennessee river trade. Th Richardson will leave tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock for Waterloo, Ala., and all way landings.

Diaz, Nation Builder.

Though Mexico holds her next presidential election in 1910, the movement is already under way to induce President Diaz to extend his service for another six years. In office are said that thirty years in office are enough for him, and that he would decline a re-nomination this time. What would happen—or what will happen—to Mexico when Diaz is replaced by another president is one of the political puzzles of the time. Forecasts and prophecies are hazardous. There is no precedent from which to judge. There is no parallel. Diaz has made the modern Mexico, and he has done exceedingly well. His nation has prospered and law and justice have gained impressive force under his intelligent and honest direction.
